Rivière du Sach'h - Etel (Amis Bretons de Colombran)

Around the Etel river.

On the customs officers' path, we join the classic Tro Breiz, never far from the sea or on the banks of the Ria d'Etel with its "bar", its fishing port, its oyster parks or the island of St Cado.

If, opposite the port, a small island with a small house attracts attention, its fame has nothing to do with its twin sister island facing the island of St Cado and photographed by Philippe Plisson.

The end of the stage, along the military field of the Polygone de tir de Gavres will be less peaceful.

On your path...

⚓ Port and ria d'Étel (A)

The "Barre d'Étel" is a sandbox in perpetual movement under the influence of winds and tidal currents. It can generate breakers or ground waves. At low tide, it can complicate the entry or exit of the ria. It is for this reason that on the right bank of the mouth, a semaphore indicates its position by signals.

It is in a café of Étel that the German garrison withdrawn in the pocket of Lorient laid down arms on May 10, 1945.

Numerous oyster farms are located on the banks of the ria.

Upstream of Pont Lorois, St Cado Island is connected to the coast by a stone bridge. This one was built by the devil in exchange for the soul of the first person to cross it. It was a cat... It shelters a 12th century chapel and a fountain.

🏰 Mane Vachem (B)

Archaeological remains of a Roman villa situated on a promontory overlooking the ria d'Étel.

This "pleasure villa" was founded at the end of the 2nd century AD. By a member of the local aristocracy, was a trading centre linked to maritime trade and the production of fish salting.

🏰 The fountain of St Cornély (C)

Located in a natural setting, not far from the village of Magouëro, this granite fountain is characteristic of the 18th century.

In the neighbouring village of Kerprat, you will find the chapel of St Cornély. Rebuilt in 1768 in a rectangular shape with a bell tower dominating the façade, on the site of an old building. A small covered porch was built to the south, facing the cross where the horned beasts were blessed during a pardon (pardon on the 2nd Sunday of September).

It is used as a setting for exhibitions during the summer.
